

Quad Cities COVID-19 Coalition
FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
April 14, 2020

Emergency responders from communities across the Quad Cities want residents to know they will continue to respond to them in their time of need during the COVID-19 pandemic. And they've shot a video to tell them.

Leaders and rank-and-file members from local police and fire departments, sheriff's departments, dispatchers, paramedics and others recorded a video – using proper social distancing, of course. We are asking media and other partners to share this video in news stories, public service announcements, on websites, and on social media platforms.

The video can be found at https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=6_ezlcUOGFI&feature=youtu.be

Each first responder or department leader read a script, and a team led by the City of Davenport recorded and edited the speakers into one, cohesive message.

We appreciate how much you have helped this coalition get out COVID-19 messages during this crisis. We are working on other videos that will reach out to the African-American, Hispanic and refugee communities in the Quad Cities and hope you will help us share those messages, too.
